

Fox Valley Surgical is an independently owned, nine surgeon multi-specialty practice, located in Appleton, WI, seeking a board certified or board eligible, and fellowship trained Surgical Oncologist that focuses on general surgical oncology with an emphasis on melanoma and also includes the management of gastrointestinal, hepatobiliary, and other soft tissue tumors.

Our practice is primarily located at Appleton Medical Center, a 147 bed community hospital with most of the medical and surgical subspecialties represented on the medical staff. Appleton Medical Center is part of the ThedaCare Healthcare system, which serves Northeast Wisconsin. Our surgical group is very active in the management of patients with the full spectrum of gastrointestinal, vascular and oncologic disease. All of our surgeons are fellowship trained, including two colorectal surgeons, a surgical oncologist and surgeons trained in vascular surgery, minimally invasive surgery, trauma and critical care and breast surgery. Our surgical oncologist is very busy and we need to add another surgical oncologist to expand our availability for oncologic cases. Our oncologist sees the entire spectrum of surgical oncologic cases, including head and neck, thoracic, hepatobiliary, gastrointestinal, soft tissue and skin malignancies. We have two active medical oncology groups in town and radiation therapy on site, including Cyberknife technology.

Appleton is a city of approximately 70,000 people and our referral area encompasses the entire Fox Valley, with a population of about 250,000 people. The Appleton schools and outlying area schools are highly ranked with many extracurricular activities offered within the school and community, which makes Appleton a great place to raise a family. It is home to Lawrence University, Fox Valley Technical College and a two year branch of the University of Wisconsin, which helps provide many cultural and educational opportunities for the community.

Our position offers full benefits and a competitive salary. Our practice is also willing to help support a fellow while they continue forward with their training. Our new hires are customarily employed for two years with the expectation that they become partner within the corporation there after, although continuing in an employed position is an option.
